Friday February 18 1704

From the Paris Gazette, dated Feb. 1.

Paris, February 1.

AN extraordinary Courier from the Army in Italy has brought the following News. In the Fight at Castelnovo on the Bormia, besides General Solari, several Officers of Note were kill'd, among others the commanding Officer of the Regiment of Staremberg: Above 300 Waggon's loaded with Baggage and Provisions were taken; and there is ground to believe, that if the King's Troops had not been retarded by the breaking of their Bridge over the Orba, the Enemy would have been intirely defeated. After the Action on the Bormia, the Imperialists march'd with great Expedition to the little Town of Acqui: into which the Sieur du Clos, detach'd by the Duke of Vendome, had thrown himself. General Staremberg summon'd him to surrender; but finding by his Answer he was resolv'd to make a brave Defence, he continued his March. The Sieur du Clos follow'd them, and finding a fair occasion, charg'd their Rear Guard, kill'd 50 Men, and took as many Prisoners. The Duke of Vendome, being rejoyn'd by his Army, pursued the Enemy; but being inform'd they had pass'd the Belbo, and that it was impossible to prevent their joyning the Duke of Savoy, he march'd towards Aiti to joyn the Troops commanded by the Grand Prior of France his Brother. According to the best Advices, the Imperial Army consisted of 8500 Foot and 4500 Horse when they pass'd the Secchia; but they have been diminish'd by the several Losses they suffer'd, more than if they had lost a Battle. At least 3000 of them were taken Prisoners, and we are assur'd as many were kill'd or died of their Wounds or of want of Necessaries in their March. There were likewise taken from them 1000 Waggon's loaded with Baggage and Provisions, and 4000 Head of Cattle: All which Advantages cost the King's Army but 200 Men kill'd. The Duke of Vendome will fix his Head Quarters at Alexandria, and has sent back 4000 Men into the Modeneze, under the Command of the Sieur de St. Fremont, who will command on the Secchia, and the Count de Prassin on the Mincio.

From the Paris Gazette, dated Feb. 9.

Asti, Jan. 21. The Duke of Vendome has put his Army into Winter Quarters, in several Lines, to cover the Montferrat and the Milaneze. The chief Quarters begin at Acqui near the Head of the Bormia close to the Mountain of Genoa, and extend to Alexandria: Some are in the Tortonois and the Pavesan, others reach from Asti to the Po near Verrua, and along the Po to Casal; and the rest are extended along the Sesia in the Lomelline and the Novarois, as far as the Valleys of Sesia.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated Feb. 15.

Turin, Jan. 29. The Weather continuing extream Cold since the Imperialists joyn'd his Royal Highness, it was resolv'd to put the Troops into Winter Quarters, that they might not be overmuch fatigued. It was thought sufficient to shut up the French in Asti and part of that Country, above 2 thirds of which are in our Hands; and to draw a Line from Alba through the Astesan towards the upper part of the Montferrat as far as Moran, within less than a League of Casal, and from thence to Vercell, in which there is a strong Garrison to defend the Quarters of the Germans who are to be dispos'd into part of the Territory of Novara. The Imperial Cavalry is in a better Condition than could be expected, considering the great Fatigues they have undergone. 40 Waggon's loaded with Provisions and 18 Pieces of Cannon belonging to the Imperialists, are arriv'd here. Yesterday his Royal Highness came hither from Vercell, accompanied by several Officers.

Frankfort, Feb. 11. The French begin to put themselves in motion in the Upper Alsatia, and are drawing together into an Army near Strasburg, to execute some important Enterprize. In order to which they have summon'd in a great number of Waggon's, to carry Ammunition, Provisions and Baggage. Mean time the Parties they have sent to take a view of the Lines of Buhl and Stolhoffen, have been repuls'd with Loss. There is no News from the Danube, more than that the Elector of Bavaria threatens to besiege Nuremberg; and that the French exact heavy Contributions in Franconia.

From the Hague Gazette, dated Feb. 21.

Hague, Feb. 21. The last Letters from Vienna, which are of the 9th tell us, that several Conferences have been held between the King of the Romans, the Elector Palatine, and Prince Eugene of Savoy; and that the Prince of Baden (arriv'd there Post) had been admitted to these Conferences. From Ausburg they write, that the French that are drawing together in Alsace, were to begin their March to joyn their Army in Bavaria the 20th instant. From Wurtsburg, that the French and Bavarians are marching to besiege Nuremberg.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated Feb. 22.

Paris, Feb. 14. Lieutenant Collonel Chaumont arriv'd here yesterday from Novare, and reports, that the Duke of Vendome has receiv'd some Recruits which were landed at Final, with 6 Battallions of new rais'd Regiments; but he adds, that Horses are very scarce and dear in Italy. The Regents of Milan have been oblig'd, in order to recruit the Cavalry of that Dutchy and remount 2 Regiments of Spanish Horse, to take the 10th Horse of all they can find, but the best Horses having been already bought up on several Occasions, they are forc'd to take up such as are unfit for Service. Horses are extream scarce in this Kingdom likewise, and the Intendants are order'd to get Lists of all the Horses in their respective Districts, to the end such a number may be pick'd out of them as shall be found necessary for the King's Service. We are assur'd the same Orders have been sent to the Spanish Netherlands. Some Troops of the Grand Mousquetaires are march'd towards Flanders; they will soon be follow'd by the rest of the Troops of the Household, and some of the Marshal de Villars's Servants are already on their way thither. The Promotion of General Officers is not fix'd yet, but the List of the Generals that are to command this Campaign will soon be publish'd. The King has given out new Commissions for levying three three Regiments of Dragoons and 12 of Foot, which are to be compleat by the beginning of April, to reinforce the Army in Germany.
